

18.5.20 Home Learning – Heroes Art and Design Technology Creative Challenges

What does it take to be a Hero? We have been thinking about the qualities and skills you need to be an everyday real-life hero. We have chosen one to look at each day of the week and suggested some creative activities to work on. As always, we hope you enjoy these activities and if you would like to share any of your creations please post to the blog or to Instagram.

Heroes have to be good at.....

Activity 1 - Heroes have to be good atCommunication

Playing a game of Pictionary is a good way to practice visual communication skills!

Here are some simple instructions if you don't have board game at home.

<https://hobbylark.com/party-games/pictionary-words>

Or you could make some signs to put up around your house – make sure they communicate clearly what needs to be said:

Activity 2 - Heroes have to be good atProblem solving

Have a go at the spaghetti tower challenge with everyone in the family. Who can build the tallest tower (using just spaghetti and tape) that supports a marshmallow (or any other small light thing that you can find in the house).

<https://tinkerlab.com/spaghetti-tower-marshmallow-challenge/>

Activity 3 - Heroes have to be good atTeamwork

Play a game of Exquisite Corpse (then keep the finished piece of collaborative art!)

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=py_xXvJoYcQ

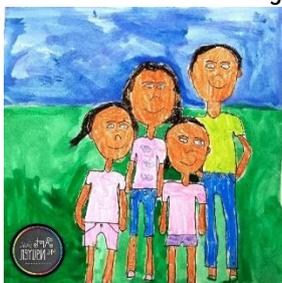

Activity 4 - Heroes have to be good atConflict resolution

Make some chatter boxes with creative lettering, calming colours and effective solutions – you can use them to help come up with conflict resolutions.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?time_continue=160&v=OGVkIVWJ0i8

Activity 5 - Heroes have to be good atCreative thinking

Celebrate your family by making a family portrait – this could be a drawing of everyone together or you could get more creativeuse found objects - choose one item to represent each member of the family and put them together for a photo

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BSqpmSmJo-8>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Qb8ubPTsHBA>